

TREASURY DRAINERS.

Boutell, F. B. Peabody, S. W. Allerton, A. C. Bartlett, George C. Newberry, and A. M. Pence. The prevailing ideas expressed were that the voters of the sanitary district should be as fully enlightened as possible as to the importance of the election, and that they should be taught that it is their duty to vote for good men only. Also that the newspapers should assist in spreading all the information regarding the drainage question possible, and that the politicians should be impressed with the importance of seeing to it that both parties nominate only first-class men.

The general sentiment of the meeting was embodied in the following resolution, which was offered by A. M. Pence and unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the Chair appoint a committee of ten, of which the Chairman of the meeting shall be one, with instructions to wait upon the press and secure its co-operation in spreading the sentiments expressed at this meeting, with power to call a mass meeting for that purpose to be held before the primaries, and that this committee have power to act as a finance committee; also with power to increase its numbers and make substitutions where members named are unable or decline to act."

It is a betting point that Dr. Gilmore, "Gen." R. J. Smith, and H. S. Boutell do not know which wards they live in. Some of the others do, but they are afraid to tell.

BOODLERS ARE BOLD.

They Are Preparing to Partake of the Drainage Feast.

A meeting of men interested in making fortunes out of the new Drainage Board was held in a La Salle street office Tuesday night.

A representative of the gamblers' trust said that that powerful agency would give $25,000 toward getting the "right sort" of men on the board.

A committee was appointed to look after delegates and "use its discretion."

Mrs. McAdow, one of the owners of the Spoiled Horse Mine, of Montana, recently drove into Helena in a buckboard, unattended, carrying a gold brick worth $40,000. It took two porters and a truck to get the heavy mass of gold from the wagon into the bank.
